

A PHILATELIC DISPLAY HONORING
THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION OF BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

The Official 100th Anniversary Jacket Patch.

The Boy Scouts of America, was incorporated on February 8th, 1910, under the laws of the District of Columbia, by W. D. Boyce. On June 21st, 34 national representatives from boy organizations met to establish the Boy Scouts of America.

This exhibit of the centennial celebration begins with a presentation of special scout postage developed by and for the Boy Scouts of America. We continue with the first celebration event that took place on July 4th, 2009, in Pawhuska, Oklahoma. We will follow the celebration across America through the more than 90 known pictorial cancellations shown on event covers. You will see the unveiling of the new Boy Scout stamp, November 12, 2009, in Washington D. C., the First Day Ceremony at the National Jamboree at Fort A. P. Hill, Virginia, July 27th, 2010, and the continuation of events to the end of December 2010.

Pawhuska, Oklahoma claims to be the place where America's first Boy Scout troop was organized, and 2009 marked the troop's centennial. The July 4 pictorial postmark shows the bronze statue of a Boy Scout that stands in front of the town's Osage County Historical Society Museum. The town used the occasion to hold a weekend-long festival.

'Celebrate Scouting' Stamp Unveiled National Letter Writing Campaign Launched to Support Our Troops

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Postal Service today gave scouting 'a stamp of approval' to honor 100 years of the U.S. scouting movement. The Celebrate Scouting stamp, which will be sold in the summer of 2010, coincides with the Boy Scouts of America's 100th anniversary.

The new stamp design was unveiled Thursday during an event at the Smithsonian National Postal Museum. The design, created by illustrator Craig Frazier of Mill Valley, CA, depicts the spirit and outdoor adventure of scouting through a backpacking scout and a large silhouette of a scout surveying the landscape.

Since the creation of the international youth scouting movement some 100 years ago, hundreds of millions of children have benefited from opportunities for adventure, skill building, leadership, personal development, and community service provided by scouting organizations.

"I'm very proud to represent the United States Postal Service as we unveil the artwork for the scouting commemorative stamp to be released in 2010 and to recognize what scouting has done for boys and girls alike for more than 100 years," said USPS Sustainability Vice President, Samuel M. Pulcrano. "I learned a great many things from scouting when I was a boy, and many of those lessons came from my father who served as my assistant scoutmaster. The experience made such an impression on me that I now serve as assistant scoutmaster for my sons' troop."

Joining Pulcrano at the unveiling event were Allen Kane, Director of Smithsonian National Postal Museum; Jim Terry, Boy Scouts of America Assistant Chief Scout Executive; Bob Mersereau, Boy Scouts of America National Director of the 100th Anniversary; Kevin Coleman, Manager, Information Policies and Procedures, USPS; Sen. Dick Lugar, R-IN; and Ernest Green, member of 1957 Little Rock Nine, who helped integrate the nation's public school system, and Honorary Chairman of the Boy Scouts of America National Hall of Leadership. Green was one of nine African-American students who, in 1957, were the first black students ever to attend classes at Little Rock Central High School in Little Rock, AR. He was the first black to graduate from the school.

The Postal Service appreciates the efforts of a number of individuals, including Rep. Pete Sessions, R-TX, Sen. Dick Lugar, R-IN, Rep. Ike Skelton, D-MO., and Sen. Ben Nelson, D-Neb., in working toward creation of the Celebrate Scouting stamp and their leadership on scouting.

In conjunction with the Celebrate Scouting announcement and Veteran's Day observances, the Boy Scouts of America (BSA) announced it will begin a nationwide effort to support U.S. Armed Forces personnel serving overseas and veterans by sending letters and care packages using the Priority Mail Flat Rate Box through the Postal Service. Local DC-area scouts mailed letters and shared news about the scouting stamp from the museum this morning. The letter writing campaign continues the BSA's longstanding tradition of service and performing "a good turn" daily.

"We are grateful to the USPS for commemorating scouting's contributions to our nation for the past 100 years," said Bob Mazzuca, Chief Scout Executive, Boy Scouts of America. "To continue our tradition of service, we are honored to launch our letter writing campaign to support our troops serving overseas. Regardless of our age, we never outgrow the joy of receiving a personal letter in the mail. It is the least we can do for the service men and women to whom we owe the deepest gratitude for their service."

The new Celebrate Scouting stamps will go on sale nationwide and will be dedicated in July 2010 at the Boy Scout Jamboree at Ft. A.P. Hill, VA.

The Boy Scouts of America will celebrate its 100th anniversary on February 8, 2010. To mark this milestone, the organization has undertaken nationwide celebration efforts that reintroduce the organization to today's young people and families, reinforce the value of scouting, and reconnect with the millions the organization has impacted. 2010 Celebrate Scouting Stamp

November 12, 2009

Dear

I thought I'd surprise you with a letter today!

Not just any letter.

A historic letter!

And guess what? I became part of history today, too!

The Boy Scouts and the Postal Service today announced a new "Celebrate Scouting" stamp that will be available next year. We got a sneak preview of it today at the Smithsonian National Postal Museum.

It was cool seeing this before anyone else! Here's what it looks like:

I wish you could have been here to see this, but figured the next best thing was to send you a look by letter. You might even want to frame it!

We all thought it would be a cool idea to send a bunch of letters about the new Scouting stamp out today, since they have a post office right here at the museum. It's one way we can celebrate the 100th Anniversary of Scouting that's coming up in February.

If you want to learn more about the Celebrate Scouting stamp, or the Boy Scouts of America's 100th Anniversary, you can visit www.scouting.org/100years.

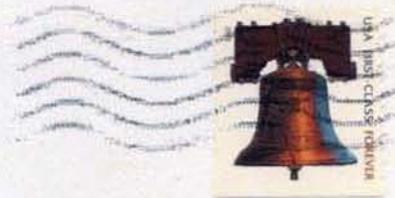

Sincerely,

As a part of the celebration, BSA developed this letter to promote a nationwide letter writing campaign to U. S. veterans and military personnel serving overseas.

Happy World Local Post Day

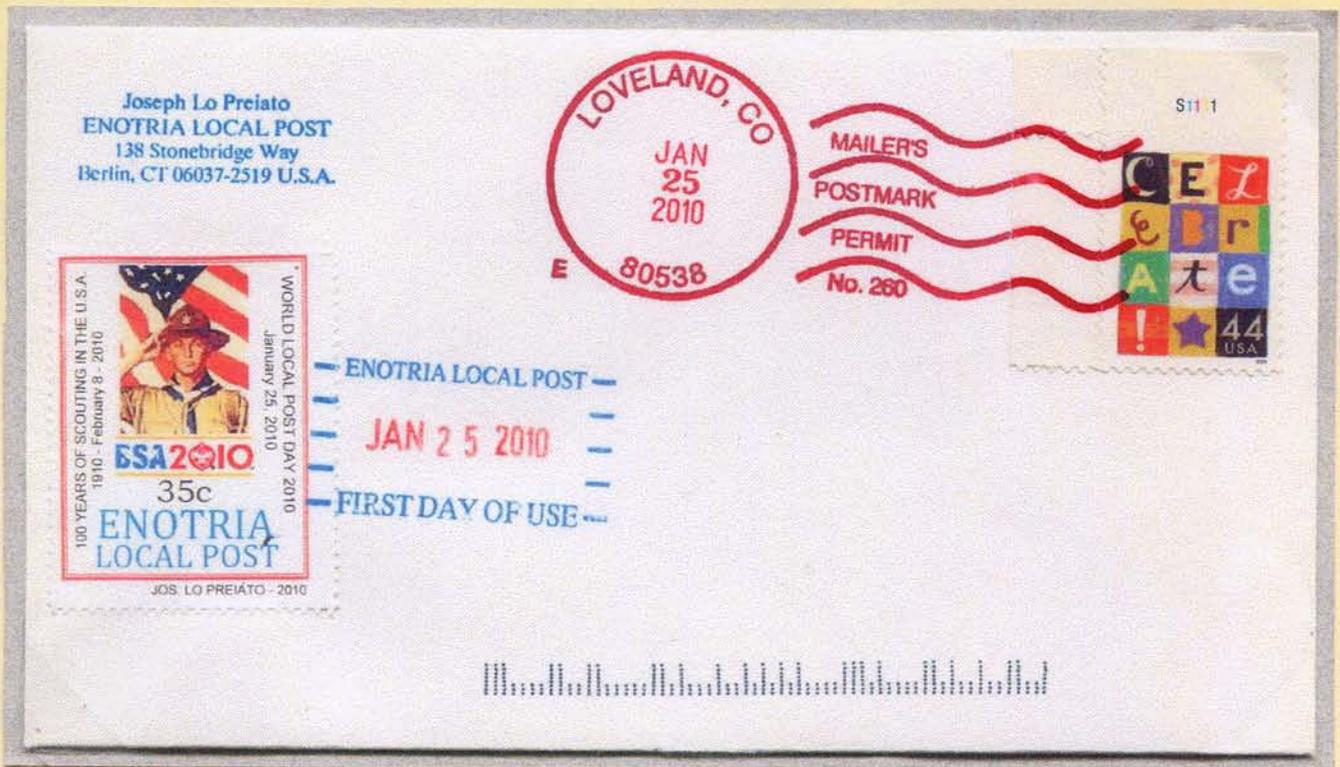

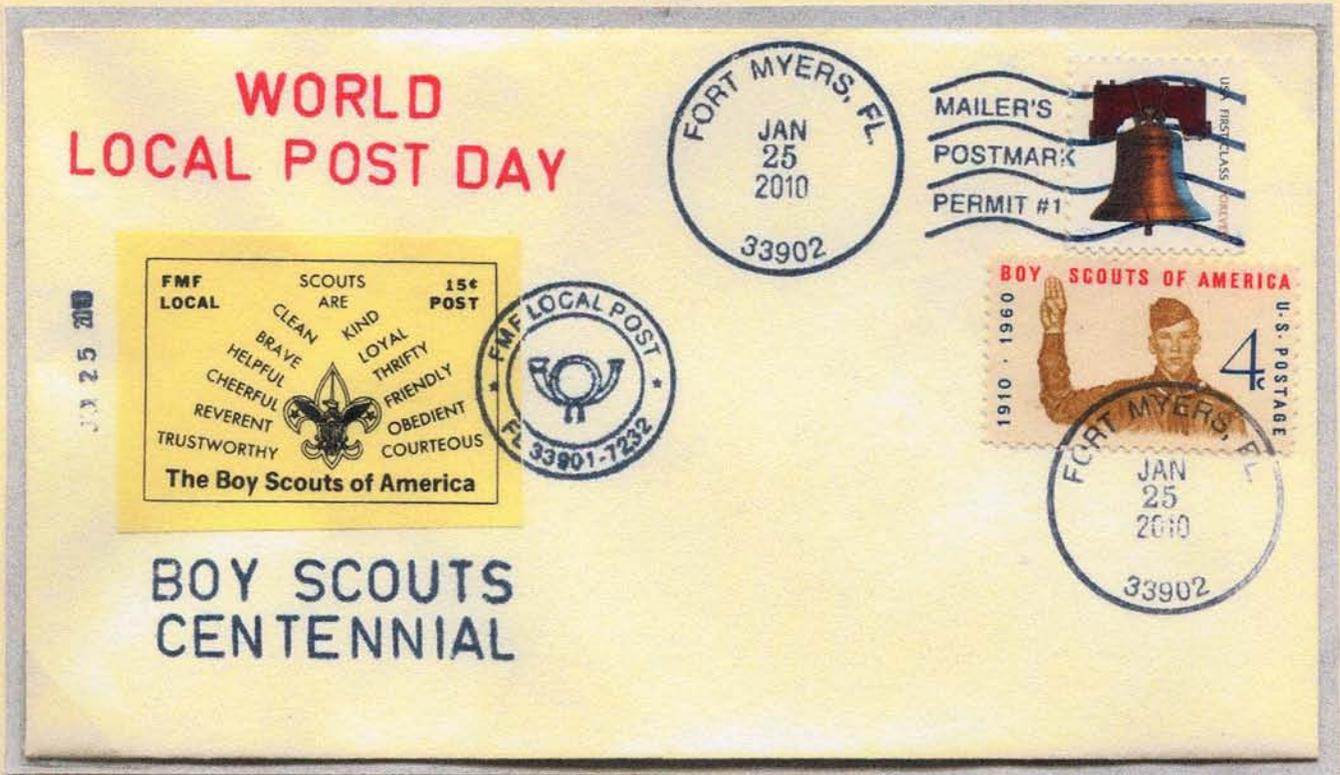

Boy Scouts 100th Anniversary

Old-fashioned fun is part of the Scout heritage. So is doing one's duty to God and country.

As the Boy Scouts of America heads toward its 100th anniversary, its first century adds up to a remarkable saga, full of achievement and complexity. On one hand, no other U.S. youth organization has served as many boys — an estimated 112 million over the years — and is so deeply ingrained in the Norman Rockwell version of American popular culture.

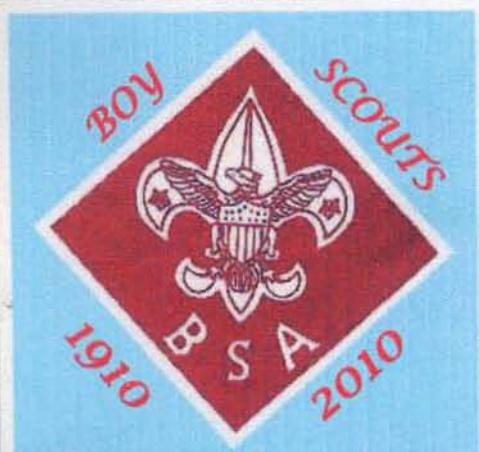

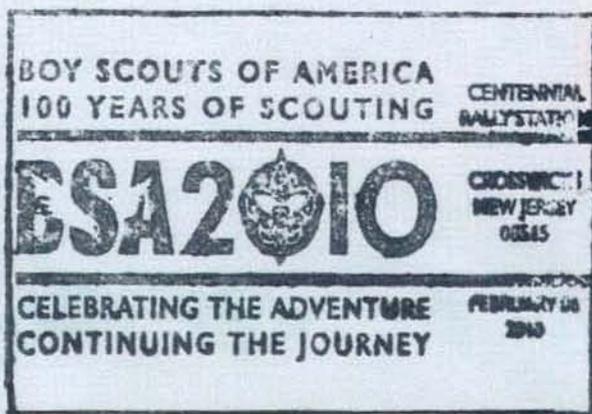

It can boast of a congressional charter and a long, unbroken string of U.S. presidents, including Barack Obama, serving as its honorary leader.

In honor of "World Local Post Day" and the Boy Scouts 100th Anniversary, These two covers were produced by members of the Local Post Collectors Society. Both covers show official Mailers Postmarks obtained from the USPS, authorizing the sender to cancel their own mail

First Day of Issue Ceremony

U. S. Postal Service official First Day of Issue Envelope.
 There were 1500 envelopes at the First Day Ceremony.
 Inside each envelope was a First Day Program, along with a Scout Stamp postcard.

With this stamp, the U.S. Postal Service celebrates the adventure and spirit of scouting. Since the birth of the international youth scouting movement some 100 years ago, hundreds of millions of children have benefited from opportunities for adventure, skill building, leadership, personal development, and community service provided by scouting organizations. These groups offer young people communities in which they can learn collaboratively, glean wisdom from adult mentors, and strive to become better citizens in the process.

Historically, scouts had to find their way by the stars or a map, notice tracks and interpret their meaning, and fend for themselves in the wild. A century later, scouting's reverence for nature remains unchanged, but the movement has kept pace with a changing world. Scouting education has adapted to advances in science and technology and to new perspectives on environmental issues. Even as scouting has expanded to include a wide range of hobbies and useful skills—from stamp collecting to financial literacy—community involvement remains paramount.

Scouting organizations worldwide reflect their own national character, but their shared values are summed up in a letter that Lord Robert Baden-Powell left to be read by his scouts after his death. Baden-Powell is often credited as the founder of the scouting movement, and his words speak to the universality of the scouting experience. "Try and leave this world a little better than you found it," Baden-Powell wrote, "and when your turn comes to die, you can die happy in feeling that at any rate you have not wasted your time but have done your best."

In this stamp design, illustrator Craig Frazier of Mill Valley, California evokes the spirit of the outdoor scouting experience. At first glance, one sees the large silhouette of a scout peering through binoculars. Then a second scout perched atop a mountain draws the viewer inward. "I wanted a level of discovery to be portrayed in the stamp itself," Frazier explains.

The panes of stamps in this package must be counted before removing the sealed film wrapper. Cut film lightly along the dotted line below and peel film over corner, keeping remainder of wrapping intact. Fold this cover along the dotted line, and count the stamps pane by pane, from top to bottom. If the full number of panes is not found, the package must be kept intact (sealed wrapped) and treated in accordance with Handbook F-101, Field Accounting Procedures. If the sealed wrapper has been removed, no claim for shortage will be considered.

The U.S. Postal Service celebrates the adventure and spirit of scouting with the issuance of this stamp designed by illustrator Craig Frazier.

Since the creation of the international youth scouting movement some 100 years ago, hundreds of millions of children have benefited from opportunities for adventure, skill building, leadership, personal development, and community service provided by scouting organizations. These groups offer young people communities in which they can learn collaboratively and have fun in partnership with adults.

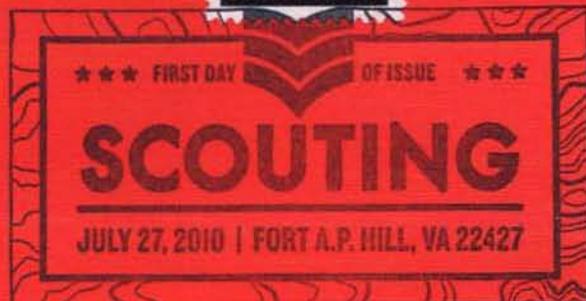

Historically, scouts were trained to find their way using the stars or a map, to notice tracks and interpret their meaning, and essentially to fend for themselves outdoors. Many of today's youth scouts continue to learn these and other skills related to outdoor and indoor activities, and these youngsters often enjoy hobbies made accessible to them through scouting.

Boys and girls alike have been involved in the scouting movement from its earliest days; female scouts are often called guides. Today, coed scouting is the norm in many countries.

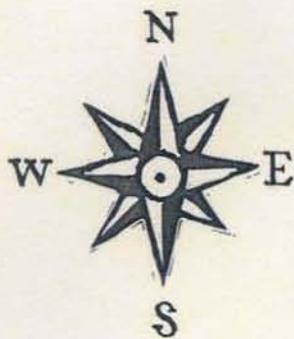

Frazier's stamp design is itself a discovery. Within a large silhouette of a scout raising binoculars to his eyes is another scout standing atop a mountain gazing out at the vista. Each of the scouts is shown in clothing and accessories that are often part of the outdoor scouting experience—hats, packs, boots, and binoculars. The illustrator recalls, "I wanted a level of discovery to be portrayed in the stamp itself."

He continues, "The small figure and landscape indicate very hard, directional light coming from low on the horizon—either early morning or late afternoon. The sky has that pale blue to indigo transition that happens only at those two times of day."

Frazier, whose designs for the Postal Service include the 2003 Nurturing Love stamped envelope and True Blue, the 2006 Love series stamp, works out of his studio in Mill Valley, California.

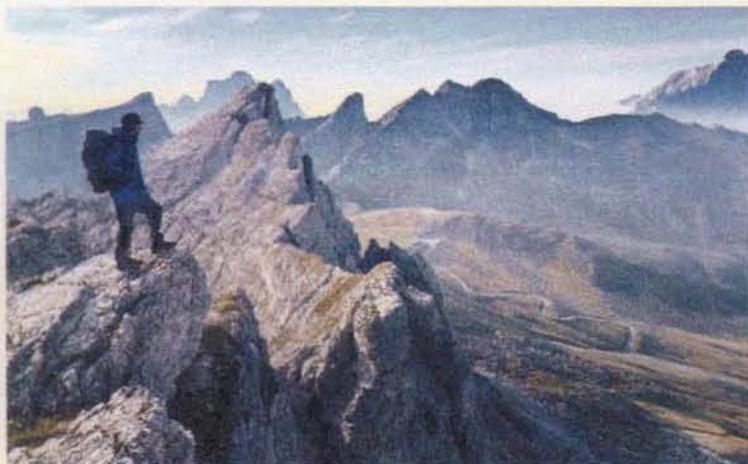

Scouting

WITH THIS 2010 stamp designed by illustrator Craig Frazier, the U.S. Postal Service celebrates the adventure and spirit of scouting.

Since the creation of the international youth scouting movement some 100 years ago, hundreds of millions of children have benefited from opportunities for adventure, skill building, leadership, personal development, and community service provided by scouting organizations. These groups offer young people communities in which they can learn collaboratively and have fun in partnership with adults.

Historically, scouts were trained to find their way by the stars or a map, to notice tracks and interpret their meaning, and essentially to fend for themselves. Many of today's youth scouts continue to learn these and other skills, both outdoors and indoors, and enjoy hobbies made accessible to them through scouting.

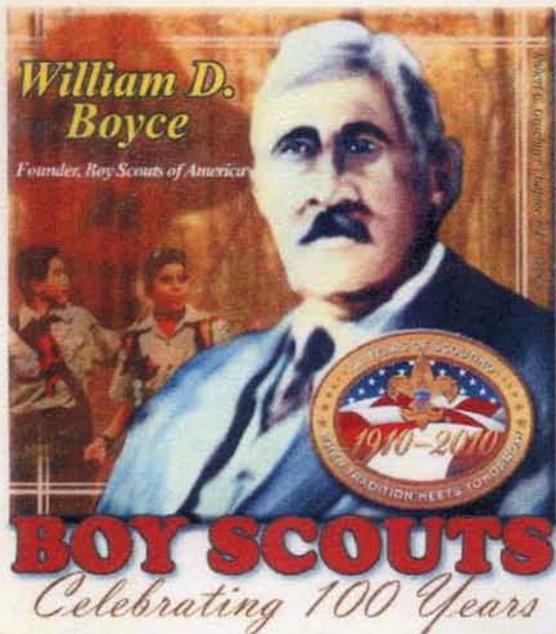

Boys and girls alike have been involved in the scouting movement from its earliest days; female scouts are often called guides. Today, coed scouting is the norm in many countries.

An original design by Frazier, the stamp art includes images of two different scouts in clothing and accessories that are often part of the outdoor scouting experience — hats, packs, boots, and binoculars. Within the larger image — a silhouette of a scout peering through binoculars — is another scout standing atop a mountain taking in the vista. "I wanted a level of discovery to be portrayed in the stamp itself," Frazier recalls.

Frazier works out of his studio in Mill Valley, California. His designs for the Postal Service include the 2003 Nurturing Love stamped envelope and True Blue, the 2006 stamp in the Love series.

Many Freemasons nationwide have been of great service to the Boy Scouts of America by supporting the development of Scouting units, serving as volunteers, and assisting their Masonic lodges in forming and sponsoring Scout units. The relationship between individual Masons and Scouting, which has existed since the founding of Scouting in America, has resulted in immeasurable benefits for both Freemasonry and Scouting. The founder of the Boy Scouts of America, Daniel Carter Beard, was made a Mason in Mariner's Lodge No. 67, New York City, New York, and later affiliated with Cornucopia Lodge 563, Flushing, New York.

SCOUTING

President John F. Kennedy was a Boy Scout in Troop 2 for two years in Bronxville, New York. He was also active in the Boston Council from 1946 to 1955: as District Vice Chairman, Member of the Executive Board for more than four years, Vice President for one year, and National Council Representative for two years. He was Honorary President of the National organization of the Boy Scouts of America in 1961.

John F. Kennedy
The first Boy Scout to become President of United States of America.

SCOUTING

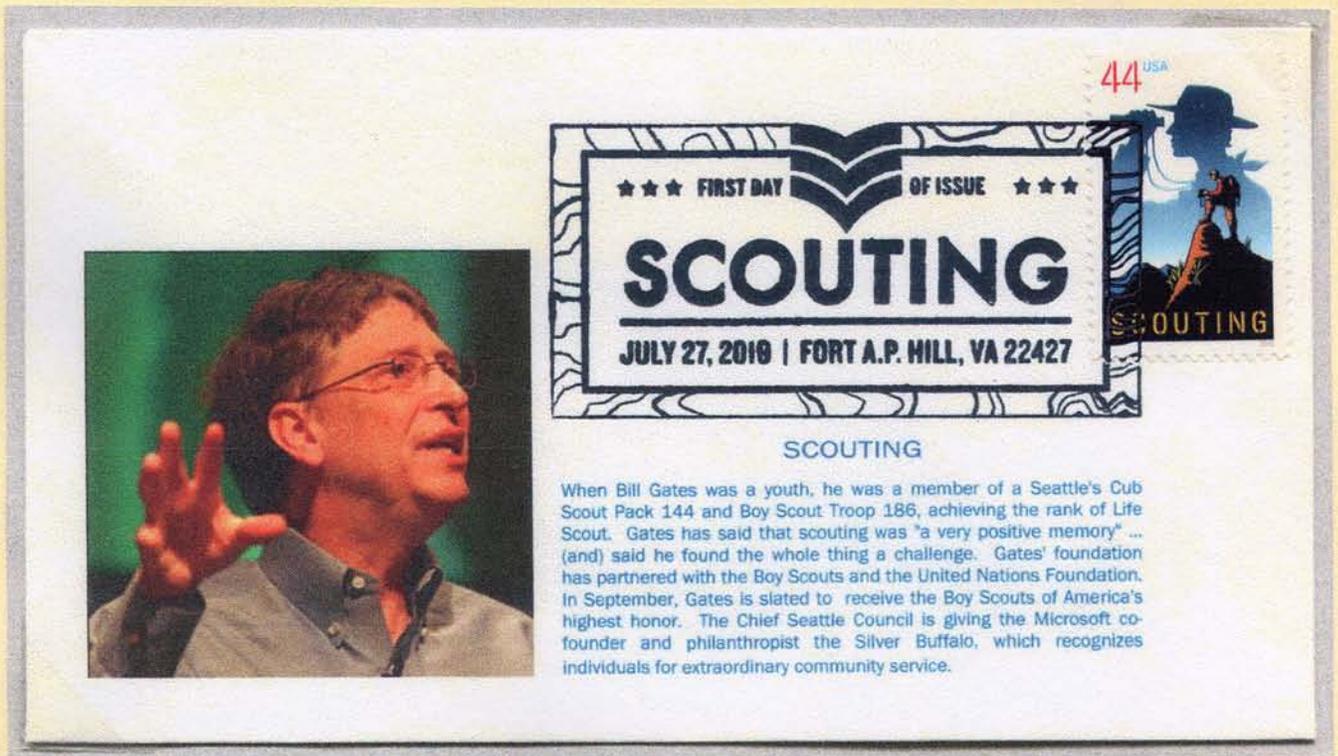

Gerald Rudolph Ford, Jr. was the 38th President of the United States, serving from 1974 to 1977, and the 40th Vice President of the United States serving from 1973 to 1974. As the first person appointed to the vice-presidency under the terms of the 25th Amendment, when he became President upon Richard Nixon's resignation on August 9, 1974, he also became the only President of the United States who was elected neither President nor Vice-President. Before ascending to the vice-presidency, Ford served nearly 25 years as Representative from Michigan's 5th congressional district. Ford earned the Boy Scouts of America's highest rank, Eagle Scout. He was also a 33rd Degree Master Mason.

SCOUTING

Neil Armstrong was born in Wapakoneta, Ohio. The family repeatedly moved around Ohio in the 15 years following Armstrong's birth, living in 20 different towns. His father's last forced move was to Wapakoneta in 1944. By this time, Armstrong was active in the Boy Scouts and he eventually earned the rank of Eagle Scout. As an adult, he would be recognized by the Boy Scouts of America with their Distinguished Eagle Scout Award and Silver Buffalo Award.

SCOUTING

Buzz Aldrin (born Edwin Eugene Aldrin, Jr.; January 20, 1930) is an American mechanical engineer, retired United States Air Force pilot and astronaut who was the Lunar Module pilot on Apollo 11, the first manned lunar landing in history. On July 20, 1969, he was the second human being to set foot on the Moon, following mission commander Neil Armstrong. Aldrin was made a member of Montclair Lodge No. 144, New Jersey. He was also a Boy Scout during his youth in Montclair, NJ

The Warren Area Stamp Club joined with the Boy Scouts of Troop 101 in celebrating the national release of the new scout stamp. The stamp Club owns an International Model HD2 machine cancel device and with the permission of the Warren Post Office, received permission to cancel mail in the lobby. The International HD2 was authorized to be fitted with a U. S. Flag cancelling die, as well as an Ohio canceling die. Both were used that day. The HD2 is a hand-powered machine, and the scouts enjoyed applying their "boy power" to cancel mail and cacheted covers.
